Intro

Hi! This has been an excellent year so far! I hope that Thanksgiving was as fulfilling for you as it was for me! I love food! ☺

You are invited to the opening reception of "Migrations & Integrations," a 2 person show, at Diaz Gallery on Friday Nov. 30, from 7-10 pm.

My work will also be on display from Dec 14-24 at the Armadillo Christmas Bazaar as well. More detailed information about these shows follows.

What's Up In My Art World?

In October, I participated in several art shows around Texas that are recapped below:

The Buda Fine Arts Festival, Buda, TX:

This was an excellent show again this year. I loved being with all of the other artists, and of course, having people collect my work. The staff was super, and they always made sure that the artists had enough water/soda to drink as well as enough food. I will definitely participate again next year.

11th Annual Bayou City Art Festival, Downtown Houston, TX:

This, also, was a great show! This show brought thousands of people who love art. Quite a few stopped in my booth. I was able to meet many interesting people, as well as receive a commission and make a few sales. I will definitely try to do this show again next year!

ARToberFEST, Galveston, TX:

It was a beautiful weekend along the Texas coast. We couldn't have asked for better weather to bring art lovers to the show. The people-watching was good at this show too. In addition, the show brought me several possible upcoming exhibits in Galveston. I will keep you posted when these are confirmed.

In addition, in the past few weeks, I have been working on pieces for both "Migrations & Integrations" and Armadillo Christmas Bazaar.

Artist Plugs

Recently, I have been on MySpace and have come across several really good artists. With each newsletter, I thought it would be fun to highlight one or two. For this newsletter, both are music artists. If you get a chance, visit their pages. The music is great!

Tracy Rice

Canadian singer/songwriter Tracy Rice hit the international stage in 2003 when she opened for country music's Terri Clark and then won a Nashville Song Search songwriting award for her single, "Won't Leave You Behind." Subsequently, she took the plunge and moved to the US where she is fast becoming known for her powerful alto, no-holds-barred lyrics, and passionate stage presence. Her style has been described in various combinations of rock, pop, folk, country, americana, acoustic, and adult contemporary. While fans tend to see the singer/songwriter as a rocker, reviewers note her ability to walk the line between rock and New Country, evoking characterizations of the love child of Melissa Etheridge and Terri Clark. The daughter of Scottish and Barbadian parents, Rice appreciates the overlap between genres and jokingly claims to be only as country as her childhood idols, the Eagles. Onstage, she is a consummate entertainer, delighting first-time audiences with a blend of Canadian good humor, husky vocals, and some rock snarl.

Tungsten Coil

The Music of Tungsten Coil is a mix of modern electronic/industrial music combined with the more dynamic and emotional sounds of a traditional driving rock band. Melded together to create an eclectic sound that feeds the listeners craving for something different. Tungsten Coil also brings back what has been missing from the live performances of today's music; A spectacular "Rock Show" - lights, fog, visuals and all the things that make a live performance memorable. The five members of Tungsten Coil are as hard working as the element itself, applying their energy towards their attention to detail among the music, the show, and promotions. Tungsten Coil's diverse, yet addictive, music, along with their intense and high energy stage shows, have contributed to their immediate success. The fast-building buzz in Austin helped land them their first SXSW showcase only 5 months after their first show. The band also took 4th place as "Best Industrial Band" in the recent 2007 Austin Music Awards, with votes due only 3 months after their debut. Their song "Time" has been getting frequent radio play and gaining popularity among their shows. For listeners that are hungry for something fresh and unique...Tungsten Coil delivers!
